Cultural Diversity: President Sharma Interviewed by Library Administration and Management Association

After a decade of unprecedented demographic change in the American population, we in the library profession have certainly been sensitized to the needs of our ethnically diverse user communities. We support the concepts of recruiting and retaining minority librarians in our institutions and associations. We talk about "empowering the emerging majorities," we create diversity committees and task forces, devise projects, hold workshops, conduct research, write, publish, and confer.

Is it all just rhetoric of political correctness, or do we truly believe that librarianship cannot survive successfully without making diversity an integral part of all that we do? Are we committed, as individuals and as an association, to moving beyond words to meaningful action?

LAMA has placed the concerns of ethnic minorities on its agenda, incorporating diversity-related goals in its planning, establishing a Cultural Diversity Committee and an Ethnic Affiliates Liaison Program, sponsoring programs and forums, and appointing members of the ALA ethnic caucuses to LAMA committees. It is essential that LAMA, the division devoted to developing vision, leadership, and administrative skills, aggressively champion diversity. As ARL Diversity Consultant (and LAMA member) Kriza Jennings notes, the most important factor in the success of diversity programs is commitment at the leadership level. She also stresses that such programs must focus on results.

What more might LAMA, the profession, and we as individuals do toward this end? What should we do differently? Better? The following are the views of President Sharma:

1. What can leaders in our profession, whatever their ethnic background, do to demonstrate genuine commitment to supporting diversity? Give one or two examples of successful efforts.

Diversity and multiculturalism are the talk of the nineties in America, but they are not being implemented effectively in the field of library and information science. According to Dr. Kathleen de la Pena McCook, only 85% of enrollees in ALA-accredited library schools are minorities. This includes 2.7% Asian/Pacific Americans. There are many well qualified and experienced Asian/Pacific Americans, but none is directing a US library school, and only a handful are library administrators; a majority work in technical services. Among the 600-plus faculty members of library schools, only 17 are Asian/Pacific Americans. There are many well qualified and experienced Asian/Pacific Americans, but not one is directing a US library school, and only a handful are library administrators; a majority work in technical services. Among the 600-plus faculty members of library schools, only 17 are Asian/Pacific Americans. Few have been appointed to or elected to committees or offices in ALA and its divisions, SLA, and other professional organizations. As leaders of these organizations, we should alert our associations, journals, and library directors to this major problem. We cannot afford to have ethnic discord in the United States. We must educate employers to hire the best possible professionals and to reward the contributions and achievements of skilled, hard-working librarians/library educators who are members of ethnic minorities. At the same time, we must encourage more people of color to enter library work and assure them that they can advance in it. As Chair of the Country Resource Panel of India of the ALA Education Committee, I have guided and encouraged many Indian librarians to attend ALA accredited library schools to improve their qualifications and learn about American librarianship.

2. How can ALA members, especially those who are not members of the caucuses or people of color, network with members of the caucuses? What do you see as the benefit of such networking?

Greetings!

Yes, the APALA Newsletter has a new look again!! We have included a photo of the President on the font page. You may submit a photo with your news now. Although black and white's are preferable, color prints are welcome too. Your photo will be returned to you upon request. The numbers of pages in this issue have been increased to 12. The APALA Newsletter now has more news and information with the objectives to better serve our readers.

In this issue, the regular "Message from the President" column is replaced by a special article written by President R.N. Sharma. The article was published in the Spring 1994 issue of the LAMA Journal. The original article includes viewpoints of presidents of other ethnic library association such as the Chinese American Librarians Association, Black Caucuses, and Reforma when they were asked by LAMA President Carol F. L. Liu to provide comments on cultural diversity.

The APALA meeting at the ALA Mid-winter meeting was a successful one. Please mark your calendar for the APALA Annual Meeting to held in Miami Beach in June.

The APALA Newsletter is a member forum to exchange news. It is important for all members to support the Newsletter by submitting any news to the Editor. I hope you will enjoy reading this issue of the APALA Newsletter, as always, I welcome comments and suggestions to improve the quality of the Newsletter. This Newsletter belongs to every member of APALA.

Until next time, I look forward to hearing from you,

Cultural Diversity

America is changing, making networking increasingly vital and beneficial for all of us. It improves the profession and makes its practitioners more productive. ALA members should commit themselves to extending the hand of friendship and promise of cooperation, encouragement, and fair partnership to all ethnic professionals. Only then will we succeed in our mission of effective networking.

3. What are the two most important things that can be done to help people of color move into leadership positions in LAMA and in ALA?

Teamwork and encouragement to people of color to come forward and apply for leadership positions. Many ethnic professionals who possess leadership skills have contributed to the development of the profession through achievements in such areas as writing, publishing, and mentoring, but they have not been rewarded and/or promoted to leadership positions. ALA and LAMA should take the lead in making such appointments, from which the profession will most certainly benefit.

4. What strategies can you suggest for integrating diversity into the overall agenda of ALA and its units?

What do you see as the responsibility of the caucuses in this effort? What responsibility does the rest of ALA have in this area?

ALA must take the leadership role in integrating diversity into the profession. It can start by appointing more minorities as chairs and members of important committees. Nominating committees should select ethnic professionals as candidates for top association positions. LAMA should monitor the integration of diversity into all professional organizations, even suggesting the names of emerging leaders. Also, there is still discrimination in hiring practices in our field; LAMA and ALA should prepare guidelines for employment, and review administrative appointments to ascertain if the guidelines are being followed. The plan should be to achieve full integration of diversity within five to ten years. This "revolution" will result in a healthier atmosphere and attract more ethnic minorities to the library field.

5. What opportunities can LAMA provide for the professional development of librarians from culturally diverse backgrounds?

What one opportunity have you had that, in your view, was the most beneficial?

More professional development seminars and workshops on leadership and emerging topics should be planned for librarians (continued on page 3)
from culturally diverse backgrounds. Scholarships and grants should be awarded to help promote attendance by alleviating the major problem of funding. Librarians of different culture backgrounds who have demonstrated leadership ability should be invited to conduct and/or speak at these seminars. I have successfully directed a number of libraries and have spoken at various Asian Libraries and library educators from South Asian countries have sat together under the same roof with American colleagues to discuss common problems. The opportunity to plan, raise funds, and bring people of different ethnic backgrounds together was beneficial to me because it demonstrated that diversity is possible and meaningful, if we desire it and work together to achieve it. APALA has been very successful in attaining diversity, and we can do likewise in ALA and our profession - where there's a will, there's a way!

Lihsueh Lin Ko is Branch Librarian at the Richard County Public Library located in Columbia, South Carolina, with a growing international population. The Richard County Public Library (RCPL) has a four-acre main library and nine branches. In order to serve the different ethnic minorities better in the future, the RCPL has initiated a program, "A New Start in A New Country - Beginning at Your Library." The Chinese patrons have been chosen as the program's primary target audience. The program, conducted in Chinese, is to acquaint the audience with the library services and some basic library skills. For more information about this program and its future plans to include other ethnic groups, please contact Lin Ko at 803-731-8552.

Dr. Norma N. Yueh was appointed Executive Officer, Center for Intercultural Education, and Professor of Library Service, Ramapo College, Mahwah, New Jersey.

APALA Constitution Amendment Proposal

The Constitution Committee has proposed to amend Section 2 of Article II (Officers and Duties) of the APALA Constitution in accordance with the APALA Constitution/Bylaws, Article VIII: Amendments.

The objective of this Constitution amendment is to enhance the unity and strength among the Asian American Librarian professionals. The voting of acceptance of this amendment will be held at the APALA Annual Conference (during ALA) in Miami Beach. The following is the proposed amendment:

2a. The President or the Vice-President shall under Section 1, Article II have the authority to negotiate and make arrangements with the sister organizations like the Chinese American Librarians Association (CALA), for taking such steps/action to minimize duplication and/or conflict in carrying out the mission and goals of APALA and other associations as the forums for professionals of Asian origin.

2b. The actions of the President/Vice President shall extend toward achieving stronger cooperation relating to membership, conference cooperation and such other matters relating to APALA, CALA or any other similar organization composed of members from Asia.

2c. In planning any such cooperative measure with another professional organization, the President/Vice-President shall present the plan during the APALA Mid-Winter each year for approval by the APALA members present and voting.

Any questions should be directed to Dr. A. F. M. Fazle Kabir, Chair, Constitution Committee, Associate Professor, School of Library and Information Science, Clark Atlanta University, 223 James P. Brawley Dr. S.W., Atlanta, GA 30314-4391. Phone: 404-880-8701; FAX: 404-880-8222

APALA will hold its annual banquet on Saturday, June 25, 1994 from 7:00pm to 10:00pm featuring Asian dances and fashion parade during the ALA Annual Conference in Miami Beach. Advanced tickets are $10 and on-site registration is $12. Contact Dr. Julita C. Awkward, Health Science Librarian, Florida A&M University, Box 136 FAMU, Tallahassee, FL 32307. Phone: 904-599-3872; Fax: 904-561-2293.

On Sunday, June 26, 1994 from 9:30am to 12:00pm, APALA will meet for their annual program. The theme for this year's program is "Linking Asian/Pacific Collections to America." The annual membership meeting is scheduled on Monday. More details about these meetings will be published in the June issue of the APALA Newsletter.
ALa Library Fellows

Applications are being accepted through March 15 for the 1994-95 Library Fellows Program. The joint program of the American Library Association (ALA) and the United States Information Agency (USIA) will place approximately ten U.S. citizens overseas beginning in September 1994. While 20 positions are listed, funding will permit approximately ten placements.

Stipends for Library Fellows are $33,000 per year. Travel expenses (fellow and one dependent) to and from the host country will be reimbursed. Health insurance and a small housing subsidy are provided. Eligibility requirements are U.S. citizenship, language skills of the host country (desired and sometimes required), and education and experience in library or information science or other fields directly related to the needs of specific projects with demonstrated competency as required.

To obtain more details regarding specific projects, i.e., the proposals submitted by the host institutions, or to apply, send resume with a cover letter, briefly stating desired position, foreign-language skills, subject expertise and maximum placement service length (there is no application form) to: Robert P. Doyle, Director, Library Fellows Program, American Library Association, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, IL 60611. Telephone 800-545-2433, ext. 3200. See center insert in the January 1994 or February 1993 American Libraries for additional information on the program.

The USIA, an independent agency within the executive branch, is responsible for the U.S. government's overseas cultural and information programs, including 153 libraries in 95 countries, the Fulbright scholarship program, the Voice of America and the WORLDNET satellite television system.

Chinese American Librarians Association

The Chinese American Librarians Association has announced their 1994 Annual Conference to be held on Monday, June 27, 1994 from 2:00 pm to 4:00 pm in Miami Beach, Florida. The theme of the Conference is "Customer Service: A Multicultural Approach." Three speakers have been invited to participate in the Conference: Professor Roy T. Chang, Cataloging and Access Coordinator, Western Illinois University Library, will speak on "The Internet: Access for All"; Ginny Gong, Community Human Relations Advocate, Montgomery County (Maryland) Public Schools and National President Organization of Chinese Americans (OCA), will present "Partners in the Emergence of the Librarians as Tomorrow's Community Centers"; and Raymond Santiago, Assistant Director, Miami-Dade Public Library System, will address on "Collection Development for a Multicultural Community." The Annual Banquet will be held on Monday, June 27, 1994, from 6:30 to 10:30 pm at the Bamboo Garden Chinese Restaurant at North Miami Beach. This banquet will feature a ten-course Chinese buffet dinner with traditional Chinese programs and karaoke singing along entertainment. The cost is $20 per person before April 30, 1994 and $25 per person after April 30. Contact Linda Tse, Vice President, Chinese American Librarians Association, Multicultural Librarian, Montgomery County, Department of Public Library, 8901 Colesville Rd.,

ALA Annual Conference Registration - Easy Bird Special

A special "Early Bird" registration fee is available to ALA members who register for the 1994 ALA Annual Conference before May 1. The conference is scheduled for the June 23-30, in Miami Beach.

Registration forms are available in the January issue of American Libraries and in the Preliminary Program that will be mailed to all members in early April. The reduced rate of $90 is a $13 savings over on-site registration. Payment can be made by cash, check or credit card.

CORRECTIONS:

In the column of "Message from the President" in the December issue, on page 1, column 2, paragraph 2 should read, "Asian/Pacific American Librarians have been part of the profession for over forty years but only a handful of them have administrative positions in libraries. A majority of them work in technical services." Also on page 2, column 3, line 8, the first word should read "nominated to lead these associations." Apologies go to President R.N. Sharma.
ALA Customer Satisfaction Poll/Survey

The American Library Association (ALA) will attempt for the first time ever to take a national "snapshot" of library customer satisfaction by asking libraries to participate in a national survey.

"Customer service is the heart of our profession," said ALA President Hardy R. Franklin in announcing the survey. "Sometimes that means asking questions as well as answering them."

Libraries of all types are encouraged to distribute the eight-question survey for a minimum of 12 hours during National Library Week, April 17-23. "Libraries Change Lives" is the theme for the annual observance which celebrates the contributions of libraries and librarians.

"We know that libraries have millions of satisfied customers," Franklin explained. "This survey is an attempt to document that fact, to learn how we can serve better and let our customers know we care what they think."

Libraries are asked to report their survey results by May 15 to the ALA Public Information Office. All responses are confidential and will be used solely for the purpose of compiling a national picture of library customer satisfaction to be used for promoting library use and support.

The survey is printed on page seven, and a camera-ready copy is available from the ALA Public Information Office. Libraries are encouraged to customize the survey by adding their name or logo or asking additional questions. Estimated time for filling out the survey is about three minutes.

ALA President Franklin has chosen "Customer Service: The Heart of the Library" as the theme for his 1993-94 presidential year. A national teleconference, "Archieving Breakthrough Service in Libraries," is scheduled for May 12.

Breakthrough Customer Service

"Achieving Breakthrough Customer Service," a video teleseminar presented by the ALA will be broadcast live to more than 300 meeting sites on Thursday, May 12.

James L. Heskett, UPS Foundation Professor of Business Logistics at the Harvard Business School, will present a new model for customer service in all types of libraries. Other presenters will be announced.

"Our nation's libraries are like any other organization -- they have to use the best models and tools to remain a vibrant force in the community," said ALA President Hardy R. Franklin. "This teleseminar offers librarians the opportunity to learn about customer service strategies from one of the world's leading experts. The fact that the breakthrough service model will be presented through release of a library management system makes it extraordinarily valuable for our members."

The teleseminar will create an electronic classroom allowing participants at downlink sites to exchange ideas and experiences during local breakout sessions. Each participant will take home a breakthrough service audit that will assess service performance along the key aspects of the breakthrough model. At various points in the program, Heskett will answer questions from remote sites and debrief the breakout exercises.

The four-hour program will be based on a business model for customer service developed through years of research at the Harvard Business School. This model will be customized to library management systems using case studies from public, school, academic and special libraries. The program will demonstrate that improvements in customer service create impressive gains in productivity and generate service excellence that leads to better patronage and support.

Early bird registration, before March 15, is $34.95 for ALA members and $39.95 for nonmembers. Group rate are $29.95 for 5-24, and $19.95 for groups of 25 or more. Add $10 after March 15. For registration information, contact ALA, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611. Phone: 800-545-2433, ext. 5052. To organize a local meeting site, contact Cheryl Cummings at Kathleen Gilroy Associates (KGA), in Cambridge, MA., at 617-354-5204.

ALA "Rally" Campaign: Free Multimedia CD

The ALA will take its campaign to collect testimonials about how "Libraries Change Lives" online in 1994. More than 10,000 letters and 45,000 statements in support of libraries were received during the 1993 campaign.

Two electronic mailboxes have been added to receive statements of support: Internet: sup-lib@uicvm.uic.edu or Bitnet: sup-lib@uicvm.

The theme for the National Library Week, April 17-23, will again be "Libraries Change Lives" and libraries are encouraged to collect statements of 100 words or less about how the library has made a difference. Libraries that submit 25 or more testimonials will receive the Encarta Multimedia Encyclopedia compliments of the Microsoft Corporation. Names and statements of no more than 100 words should be sent by May 15 to: ALA Public Information Office, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611. For more program and promotion ideas, see the 1994 "Libraries Change Lives" booklet available from ALA Graphics. Phone: 800-545-2433, press 8.
How to do it

The customer satisfaction survey designed by ALA is intended as a tool to be used by all types of libraries, one that will generate direct feedback from those we value most — our customers.

Some tips for administering your customer service survey:

1. You may customize the survey by adding your library's name and logo in the space provided or by adding other questions that are pertinent to your library. Public libraries should "white out" the reference to students and faculty in Question 8.

2. Decide who will distribute the survey form. You may wish to recruit students or other volunteers for this task.

3. Decide when to distribute the form. We suggest that you distribute it for at least 12 hours during National Library Week, April 17-23, 1994.

4. Decide where to distribute the survey forms and who should get them. You may wish to station someone at the library main entrance or — at a grocery store. You may also hand out at speaking engagements. Or, send to all faculty members.

5. If necessary, you may leave survey forms and pencils on a desk with a sign inviting library users to respond. This should be in a supervised area.

6. Send a press release to local/campus media to make people aware that you are conducting a customer satisfaction survey. You may also want to send a follow-up release — "Library users give high marks for service" or "80 percent of library users say they want more hours."

7. Hold an orientation session for your survey team. Team members should be instructed to be encouraging — "We will really appreciate this" — but not overly persistent. If someone clearly does not wish to participate, have plenty of pencils to give out.

8. Make your survey visible. Post signs saying, "We want to hear from you. Please fill out a Customer Satisfaction Survey today." Have a large box clearly identified ("Return surveys here. Thank you.") to collect surveys.

9. Have a "coding party" with your survey team tabulating the results.

10. Record the total number of responses to each question and send the results by May 15, 1994, to: Customer Satisfaction Survey, ALA Public Information Office, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611.

(Note: Comments are primarily for your use. Send only those that you feel are particularly insightful or might be useful for ALA's legislative/publicity efforts.)

Internet

Have you ever tried to acknowledge a source from internet in your publication? There has not been, of course, a standard bibliographic format for such sources nor other electronic information sources, e.g. multimedia encyclopedia or Prodigy online encyclopedia. As these types of information sources are not uncommon in today's libraries and research process, it is important to use a standardized format for bibliographic references. Interested readers should consult "Electronic Style: A Guide for Citing Electronic Information" by Xia Li and Nancy B. Crane (ISBN 0-88736-909-X, 99pp., July 1993, $24.00) published by Meckler, 11 Ferry Lane West, Westport, CT 06880. Phone: 203-226-6967; Fax: 203-454-5840.

In accordance with Vice President Al Gore's policy on advocating the information highway, ALA and several other library groups have joined more than 60 organizations in announcing a new coalition and unveiling a blueprint for America's 21st-century information infrastructure. The Telecommunications Policy Roundtable called on vital issues of communications policy. The coalition's statement, "Renewing the Commitment to a Public Interest Telecommunications Policy," outlines a series of principles, and introduces them with this credo: "We believe that the following principles must guide policy making in order to ensure that future generations inherit an information infrastructure which enhances the quality of life for everyone." The coalition's seven principles are:

1) Universal access - In our information age, everyone has a right to affordable news, education, and government information. Information that is essential to the functioning of citizens in a democracy should be free.
2) Freedom to communicate - Information is a two-way street. The design of the new networks should aid two-way audio and video communication from anyone to any individual, group, or, network.
3) Vital civic sector - The new networks should allow all groups and individuals to freely express their ideas and opinions. The new networks should include a way for us to build communities.
4) Diverse and competitive marketplace - No one should ever control both the wire or wires into our home and the content of the programs that go over those wires.
5) Equitable workplace - Workers must be valued and protected in the new electronic workplace. Nondiscriminatory practices must form the core of the new information marketplace.
6) Privacy protection - Privacy should be carefully protected and extended.
7) Democratic policymaking - Every American deserves to be heard on this complex set of issues.

Pan Asian Repertory

The multi-award-winning Pan Asian Repertory Theatre, widely known for presenting works of Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Indian and Asian American backgrounds, was open to the public for a special free performance as part of the Asian Studies Conference at the Ramapo College of New Jersey on Friday, October 29, 1993.

The appearance of the Repertory was part of the 22nd annual meeting of the Association of Asian Studies Mid-Atlantic Region, October 29-31, 1993 at Ramapo College. The three-day conference drew more than 250 specialists in Asian Studies from five states. The one-hour performance of the Repertory included highlights from three of their most famous productions: Cambodia Agonistes, Letters to a Student Revolutionary, and A Song for a Nisei Fisherman.

According to Linglin Shih, community liaison for the troupe, their goal is to enlighten audiences about the cultural heritage of Asians, "the diversity of our artists", and the wide range of contributions made to America by Asian people.

The Pan Asian Repertory Theatre was founded by Tisa Chang in 1977. Ms. Chang was born in China and graduated from the High School of Performing Arts and Barnard College. The Pan Asian Repertory, now considered the premier professional Asian American theatre company in the US, tours nationally and internationally. The company has mounted over 52 full productions, including 20 world premieres.

For further information about the Pan Asian Repertory or the Asian Studies conference program, contact Dr. Norma Yueh, Executive Officer, Center for Intercultural Education, and Professor of Library Service, Ramapo College, Mahwah, New Jersey, phone: 201-529-7578.

Government Information Locator Service

The US Government Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is promoting the establishment of an agency-based Government Information Locator Service (GLIS). OMB is requesting comments on the GLIS draft design concept which is available on the FedWorld bulletin board, 703-321-8020 and the document is also downloadable from the Internet via anonymous File Transfer Protocol from 130.11.48.107 as/pub/gils.doc (Microsoft Word for Windows format) or/pub/gils.txt (ASCII text format). OMB states that the public would be served by GILS directly or through intermediaries such as public libraries.
The Search Committee requests that your resume, below, be sent in confidence to our search firm, address below, or FAX 212-997-1127. Nominations, also, are most welcome. Preference deadline: March 31, 1994, although resumes will be accepted until decisions are made.

A Ph.D. in Library and Information Science is required. Practical and/or teaching experience in an institution comparable to UWM. Evidence of research activity is required. Record of scholarly publications and research. Three letters of reference. Minimum salary is $32,000 for an academic year (9-month) appointment plus additional compensation for possible summer teaching and generous fringe benefits. The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (UWM) is a major university committed to academic excellence and located in the commercial and industrial hub of the state of Wisconsin. The campus is in a pleasant, residential neighborhood on Milwaukee’s northeast side, only a few blocks from Lake Michigan. It is one of the two “doctoral cluster” campuses in the 13-campus University of Wisconsin System, and has a student enrollment of over 24,000. Both the University and the School are committed to increasing the diversity of the faculty, staff, and student body and strengthening sensitivity to diversity throughout the institution. We take affirmative action to ensure equal opportunity. As part of this plan of action, the School is particularly interested in receiving applications from qualified female and minority candidates. Deadline of application is April 15, 1994. The starting date is August 22, 1994, or is to be negotiated. Send letter of application, resume, and three letters of reference to: Dr. Virgil Diodato, Chair, Search and Screen Committee, School of Library and Information Science, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, PO Box 413, Milwaukee, WI 53201. Phone (414) 229-4707 Fax: (414) 229-4848 Internet: diodato@convex.csd.uwm.edu. THE UW-MILWAUKEE IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER.
